This worksheet starts the Power of Attorney preparation process. After you complete it, you will discuss your need for a Power of Attorney with an attorney. If you have any questions, which are not answered by this worksheet, please discuss them with an attorney.*

A Power of Attorney (POA) gives full legal power to the person named in the document to make decisions on your behalf. That means he or she can manage and conduct affairs and act in matters in your name and on your behalf. You will be held legally responsible for those things that you have authorized your agent to do for you. We strongly recommend that you only give such a document to someone you trust completely with no reservations.. There are two types of POAs: 1) General, which authorizes your agent to do all things in your name and behalf and 2) Special, which authorizes your agent to do only those things that you specify.

What is a will? A will is a legal document that states your desires concerning what will happen to your property after your death. A will also contains specific directions from you concerning who is to implement your instructions and perhaps who will care for any minor children you may leave behind.

Why should I have a will? If you should die without a valid will, the distribution of your property will be governed by the laws of your state of legal residence and perhaps by the laws of the state in which you die. Your wishes usually are not considered.

Does my will control all of my property when I die? No. For example, proceeds of insurance policies are distributed as you have designated in the insurance policy, and property you own jointly with another person will normally go to the other joint owner.

Part B: Distributing your Belongings

How do I give my belongings away? Generally speaking, you may state in your will that you are leaving your property to anyone you wish; although, some states have laws that may give your spouse and/or your children a right to a portion of your property despite what you write in your will. Most married couples leave all the property to the spouse, and, if the spouse does not outlive him or her, then they leave it to the children.

Can I give specific gifts to people? Yes, these are called Specific Bequests, and you may make them by fully describing what you want to give and the person to whom you are giving the gift. You should be careful about Specific Bequests. If you dispose of property that you describe prior to your death, or, if there is any doubt about the exact property that you described in your will, you may be creating difficulties for your Personal Representative/Executor.

1. How do you want to leave your property when you die?
( ) all to spouse

---

5. Do you wish to disinherit anyone? (full name(s) and relationship to you)

Part C: Personal Representative

What is a Personal Representative/Executor? A Personal Representative is a person whom you name in your will who will distribute your belongings in accordance with what you say in your will. His or her job is to settle your estate. This includes paying any taxes or debts, which you still owe when you die.

Who should I pick as my Personal Representative? You should pick someone who has good business judgment and someone whom you trust to make good decisions about your estate and who will not be overwhelmed by the process. Some people name their spouse as Personal Representative. Others name relatives or close friends.

Who is the person you wish to make as Personal Representative of your will?

- ( ) Spouse
( ) Other (Print Name and Relationship to you):

If you wish to name an Alternate Personal Representative, please print the name and relationship to you:

Part D: Caring for your Children after you are Gone (if you have Minor Children, Complete Part D. If not, continue to Part E)

What is a Guardian? A Legal Guardian is the person who will act as a parent for any of your children who are minors at the time of your death. Normally, if you are survived by your spouse, he or she becomes the children's Guardian if he or she is the biological or adoptive parent of the children. However, it is recommended that you name a Guardian and an Alternate Guardian in the event that both you and your spouse die. If you or your spouse have children not born of your current marriage, you should discuss the situation in detail with an attorney to determine the most appropriate way to provide for the children.

Please print the name and relationship to you of your first choice to be Legal Guardian:

If you wish to name an Alternate Guardian, please print the name and relationship to you:

---

What is a Trustee? A Trustee is the person who manages the property that you pass to your children upon your death. Often, the Trustee and alternate Trustee (if you wish to name an alternate) are the same individual(s) whom you appointed as the Guardian and alternate Guardian, but a Trustee can be someone different if you choose.

Please print the name and relationship to you of your first choice to be Trustee(s).

If you wish to name an Alternate Trustee, please print the name and relationship to you.

---

Choosing an age of Final Distribution: At a certain age, your children/beneficiaries will be entitled to manage their inheritance on their own. You can determine at what age you consider the child/beneficiary to be ready for such a responsibility. Frequently chosen ages include eighteen (18), twenty-one (21), and twenty-two (22) years of age (note: age twenty-two is computed based upon a rough determination of age eighteen plus four years of college).

What age of majority would you like to set for your child/beneficiary's trust to vest or end? _____

Part E: Another Document to Consider

Living Will: A living will is a document, which expresses your desire that extraordinary measures not be taken to save your life. It is a document used only when a person is determined to be in a state from which he or she is unlikely to recover, such as a vegetative state.

If you desire a living will, please complete A thru D.
